CLP Power takes Top Honours at Technology Awards

CLP Power Hong Kong Limited (CLP Power) has received four awards for the excellence of its employees in the Outstanding Information and Communications Technology (ICT) Awards 2015 organised by the Hong Kong Computer Society.

CLP Power is particularly honoured that Ms Chan Sau Ting, its Production & Operation Services Manager, was given the Outstanding ICT Woman Professional Award in the inaugural 2015 category, demonstrating CLP Power’s dedication to people development. The award aims to recognise female excellence in the field with an aim to encourage more women to pursue careers in the IT profession.

CLP Power was also presented with three of seven Outstanding ICT Achiever Awards in the Project Management category, showcasing the strong management of the company in ICT projects. CLP Power Director of Information Technology Mr Andre Blumberg said, “Care for people is one of our core values. As innovation continues to accelerate, our development in skills and management competency is essential to Hong Kong’s aspirations of becoming a Smart City.”

The Outstanding ICT Achiever Awards was launched in 2008 and this year’s awards were organised by the Hong Kong Computer Society for a third time. The awards recognise IT professionals for their significant achievements and contributions to the industry and the community in Hong Kong.
